Born Jan. 3, 1901, Minneapolis, Minn. Educated Minneapolis public schools. Married, Dorothy Jane Chandler May 17, 1924. Children: Jane, 25, Geoffrey, 30, the latter a staff reporter on The Detroit Free Press.

As a youth worked in such varied capacities as bank messenger, Atlantic cattle shiphand, farm laborer, railway signal maintainer and wholesale paper house stock clerk.

Joined the business office of The Detroit News in March, 1924, writing and researching for advertising department publications. Went from The Detroit News to the Detroit Steel Products Co. as editor of its house organs.

Assignments have included rewrite, general and beat reporting, copyreader, assistant city editor, assistant news editor, night city editor, two tours of duty as city editor, columnist specializing in military affairs and editorial writer.

Incidental writings, begun while a house organ editor, include a considerable volume of fiction for the woodpulps of yesteryear, several books of mystery fiction, an appearance in the old American Mercury of Mencken and Nathan, fiction contributions to The Saturday Evening Post, and a biography of Edgar A. Guest.

Took military leave from The Free Press in January, 1943, entering the Army as a captain. Returned from service in March, 1946, with rank of lieutenant colonel. Duties were almost wholly connected with Army News Service and ultimately became officer in charge of ANS -- an organization rather closely comparable to a civilian wire service in that it serviced news material to the many large and small Army publications and Army network newscasters. Duties included European Theater service; one battle star and Bronze Star Medal.

At the time of taking military leave was an editorial writer under the late Malcolm W. Bingay. Returned to that post after service, was subsequently

WILLIAM CHANDLER DEAD

He Passed Away at Eight O'Clock Saturday Morning

William Chandler, Sr., departed this life at his home, 126 Second avenue, at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, aged fifty-two years eight months.

William Chandler was born in Peru, New York, on June 27, 1841, and came to Clinton county with his parents over forty years ago, settling near Camanche, where his aged mother yet resides. Thirty years ago he was married to Miss Roxanna Russell, of Camanche, and in 1871 they came to this city where they have since resided.

Several years ago in December last Mr. Chandler suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which he never fully recovered, the peculiar disease gradually working upon his system until the vital spark of life was extinguished.

Of the immediate family a devoted wife and two sons--Lester and William are left to mourn.

The funeral will be held from the residence, 126 Second avenue, at 10 o'clock Monday morning, followed by interment in the cemetery at Camanche.

obit. source of VR info. about Wm. M. Chandler. Unable to locate a gr. stone in Rosehill Cemetery. The following is the obit. for W. M. Chandler: WILLIAM CHANDLER DEAD, He Passed Away at Eight O'clock Saturday Morning., William Chandler, Sr., departed this life at his home, 126 Second Avenue, at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, aged fifty-two years & eight months. William Chandler was born in Peru, New York, on June 27, 1841, & came to Clinton county with his parents over forty years ago, settling near Camanche, where his aged mother yet resides. Thirty years ago he was married to Miss Roxanna Russell, of Camanche, & in 1871 they came to this city where they have since resided. Several years ago in December last Mr. Chandler suffered a stroke of paralysis from which he never fully recovered, the peculiar disease gradually working upon his system until the vital spark of life was extinguished. Of the immediate family a devoted wife & two sons--Lester & William--are left to mourn. The funeral will be held from the residence, 126 Second avenue, at 10 o'clock Monday morning, followed by interment in the cemetery at Camanche. (Clinton Daily Age, March 19, 1893, p. 1) (Diary entry, March 20, 1893) "William Chandler died Saturday and is buried today at Camanche."

Of the immediate family a devoted wife and two sons--Lester and William are left to mourn.

The funeral will be held from the residence, 126 Second avenue, at 10 o'clock Monday morning, followed by interment in the cemetery at Camanche.

Dear Ed & Betty,

I was very glad to hear that your folks in and around San Francisco were unhurt in the earthquake. Have talked to Sally on the phone. The inability to reach victims on the collapsed freeway gives a nightmare quality to the disaster.

Thanks very much for the Chandler-Russell information and charts. I know they represent a great deal of time and effort on your part. Interesting that the Russells came from Vermont, spent a number of years in New York State, then went on way out to Iowa. Homesteading?

Have a good trip to California. I hope that all the problems of the quake aftermath don't complicate things for everyone too much.

We'll be in touch.

Best regards,

Geoff

(and Jo)

Dear Ed & Betty,

Sorry once again to be so dilatory in communicating. Got your card, of course, and are delighted at the prospect of seeing you on your way back west.

If you leave there on or about Feb. 20, I'd guess you'd reach Royal Oak about the 23rd. Let us know the day and we'll have the coffee on. (In case you don't have it, our phone is 313-547-7776.)

I'm getting used to retirement; I like it, as I knew I would. Plenty to do in the shop.

Lately we've been glued to the TV set. The war is alarming and the aftermath unknown.

Best regards,

Jeff

Dear Ed & Betty,

Bet you're glad to be home after traveling so long and so far. It was great that you were able to stop here and Jo enjoyed meeting you. We're sorry that your arrival coincided with Jo's departure; we had hoped to spend more time visiting when you came this way. As it turned out, she was gone 10 days instead of the five or six she had planned. There were complications in Chris's surgery and it was more extensive than expected. But she's OK now and is up and at 'em. Would have liked to show you around trendy Royal Oak and have you meet children and grandchildren.

Vera writes that she had a knee operation; hope she's better and able to get around without pain.

Too bad you came up empty-handed in Clinton. Did you have any luck in your Michigan search?

Mary McKenrick is a remarkable lady. I suppose you also saw the Paasches. Friendly people.

I trust you didn't find the storm damage too bad at home. There certainly has been much violent weather around the country. Maybe it's the green-house effect.

Best regards,

Geoff (& Jo)

Oct. 25, 1988

Dear Betty:

I had no idea that you and Ed lived so far from the mainland -- your trips to Seattle really do take planning. Somehow, probably because I'm not familiar with that area, I had a vision of brisk 20-minute ferry ride, with Seattle right there at the other end.

Yes, of course I'll send you photos. It will take about 10 days to get copies made, because the negatives are God knows where, but I don't have them. I will send you the same set that I sent to Sally, because they are the best ones I have and are the clearest so that you can practice that great sport of tracing family resemblances, which I love to do. (I thought that sentence would never end.) In turn, I would be delighted to have photos of Ed's children, so that I can look for similarities. I keep nagging Sally for a photo of her, but I think she's camera-shy. Now I can't even remember -- did I send you a photo of me? Now that I have three brand-new cousins it's hard to keep track of what I've sent to who.

Thanks for enclosing that page from the genealogical reference book. It matches with our family history on the Howeses, and yes, on my father's side we are descended from that Thomas Howes listed there. By the way, maybe you can give me a definition on first cousins, first cousins once removed, second cousins, etc. For example, Ed and I are first cousins. Now, I always thought that technically speaking our children would be first cousins once removed, and their children would then be second cousins, and so on down the line. Perhaps first cousins once removed was an old-fashioned term for second cousins, and I am misinformed on the terminology.

Looking at the pedigree chart you sent, I'm thinking that if you are able to get any information on Great-Grandmother Mattie Cunard Jones's brothers and sisters, and their marriages and their children, the size of the family will about sextuple in no time at all.

As for our May reunion, I haven't discussed definite dates with Geoff, but will do so quickly. It's my thought that the second half of May would be better as far as weather goes, but nothing that would occur on or close to Memorial Day weekend because that might complicate travel arrangements. I just took a look at the 1989 calendar at the back of my checkbook, and perhaps we can agree on some dates between Wednesday, May 17, and Wednesday, May 24. Third week in May, if I had expressed it logically.

The similarities between our mothers are interesting. I have often tried to puzzle out my mother's character and behavior, which encompassed great mood swings, but not in any clinical sense. I am convinced that she was unable, ever, to believe that she was loved by any of us, and when this feeling got the upper hand -- and it often did -- she would go into a harsh, icy withdrawal from us. Not so much from my father (or so it seems to me) because she depended on him almost desperately, but from my brother and me. When I say that she depended on my father, it wasn't any kind of external, passive dependence that was easily recognized. Mother was an extremely competent, independent-appearing woman, but at some deep level that became more apparent as she got older, she was utterly emotionally dependent on him. My father was a damn difficult man in a different way, but had more easy surface pleasantness than she did. Families! It's a wonder any of us survive them. After all, my parents (and yours, and Ed's) were formed by their parents, who were formed by their parents, and on it goes.

Well, I'm really supposed to be drafting a report on artificial sweeteners, but this was more fun. Tell Ed hello, I hope to hear from you again soon, Betty, and I'll send you photos as soon as they're ready.

Love,

Jane

Dear Betty and Ed:

It's good to hear from you. You've certainly got a thorough good health regime going. I've enclosed an article on walking -- I'm sure you know most of what it covers -- but the explanation of "gait efficiency" is interesting.

I walk a lot myself, and Washington is a beautiful city for it. Yes, I know we're currently the murder capital of the country, but not to be too hard-hearted or cynical, most of these murders are limited to heavy drug using areas (crack, of course) and the dealers fighting for turf or killing for revenge. When the situation began to develop a couple of years ago, the police did nothing, and now it's completely out of hand. Whole neighborhoods have been taken over by open air drug markets, and it's a case of blacks victimizing blacks in a black-run city. Very sad.

But, back to the walking. Every work day I get off the subway one stop early and walk a mile to my office, then reverse the procedure in the evening. It's a pleasant walk, part of it runs through a park, and it's a good way to begin and end the day. The only time I cut back is during the early-dark months of winter, and then I only walk in the morning. As far as I know, nothing has ever happened to anyone walking that path after dark, but why should I be the first?

We're having a strange spring, or maybe I forget from year to year what spring does. We go from unseasonable heat and humidity to sudden cold winds and icy rains and then back again. I can dress for summer in the morning and walk through winter in the afternoon. I just read an old rule from the Farmer's Almanac about when to give up long underwear in the spring: "Stick to your long underwear until it sticks to you."

I get more and more eager as our Clinton project comes closer. Sally sent me some of the motel literature on Clinton and it looks as if they're doing what every small-sized American city tries: creating a glamorous image. I hope we can turn up lots of family information, as well as trading our own recollections and experiences. It's interesting that you've tracked James Earl Jones's family to Ohio. The Joneses must have been part of the great, restless 19th century migration when people just kept pushing westward till they found a place they liked -- or ran out of money and enthusiasm. Great-grandfather JEJ must have been a restless soul -- I believe I told you (or Geoff passed the information along) that he went off to live with an Indian tribe for about 10 years. We may be able to qualify for some kind of minority grant if we play our genealogical cards right.

And one thing I know -- we won't have any trouble recognizing one another. None of this "I'll be wearing a red carnation" routine -- it will be fun!

Wed., Sept. 14

Dear Sally:

I'm sending you three photos -- Vera and Dorothy Chandler, and one of me, so you'll have a face to go with the name. I'm assuming that the photos of Vera and Dorothy are ones you haven't seen. You are welcome to keep Vera's photo, and I'll just ask that you return Dorothy's when you're done with it. They both have lovely faces, but they don't look like sisters, do they?

I'll be interested to hear your reactions to the photos of Dorothy and Vera, which of you three looks like one or the other, who has what kind of coloring, all that sort of thing.

As for me, you see me sitting sunburned and weary in a cafe in Israel. The picture was taken a year ago, but I haven't changed that much. By the way, I'm still looking for the polaroid shot of Grandma Chandler. I'll send it to you as soon as I find it.

I forgot to ask you to send me Ed and Vera's addresses, I would like to write to them.

I don't know if you are experiencing a rush of forgotten or suppressed emotions, but I certainly am. There is so much to re-experience, and so many gaps to be filled. In an odd way, I have almost a sense of completion about this, as if the broken circle had been made whole again.

Looking forward to hearing from you again.

Warmly,
Jane

Sept. 20, 1988

Dear Sally,

Please excuse my delay in replying to your letter of the 10th. I waited until I had a weekend to search through family memorabilia for information you want about Grandmother Chandler. What I have is sketchy in spots and perhaps irrelevant in other spots but I'll try to outline it as best I can. You'll note that some of the dates differ from the ones you have; I'm sure that's to be expected when trying to piece together genealogical information from various sources. A primary source of my information is notes that my mother made as Grandmother reminisced about her early life and family a year or two before her death. This being oral history, it's quite possible that inaccuracies might have crept in as long-ago dates were recalled.

One other difference occurs. Mother's notes indicate that grandmother's baptismal name was Louann, whereas your information has it Luella. This probably is unexplainable, except that evidently throughout her life she was known simply as Lou or Lulu, which could derive from either given name.

Anyway, here's what I have, right or wrong:

Lou Jones was born Feb. 21, 1876, in the family homestead in Clinton, Ia. Her parents were James Earl Jones and Mattie Jones, nee Cunard. Mattie was a Clinton girl; James came from "down South." Two sisters, Eva and Beatrice, died before Lou was born. She had a younger brother, Earl, and a younger sister, Bernice. Earl joined the Navy at 17, served during the Spanish-American war, but was given a medical discharge after one year and returned to Clinton, married, and died at age 25 of what grandmother thought was TB.

The Jones family lived in Chicago, where James Earl was a passenger engineer on the Northwestern Railroad. Mattie died of TB in her early 40's. James Earl remarried and Lou and Bernice returned to Clinton to live with their grandparents Cunard. Grandmother's recollection was that she was 15 at that time.

Lou Jones married William Abraham Chandler on March 2, 1893, in Clinton. He was the son of William and Roxanna Chandler (nee Randall), both Clinton natives. They had a restaurant there but the elder William had been invalided by a stroke and was retired when Lou and the younger William married. The young couple shared the elder Chandlers' home. Both William sr. and Roxanna died within two years after Lou and William A. were wed. At the time of the marriage, William A. worked at the Acme Bar, but then joined Prudential Life Insurance Co. In what capacity is not stated.

Here the notes become sketchier and then end:

Lou and William's first child was a boy, Lester Russell. He died at about one year. Then William "got a good job in Mankato" (I assume Mankato, Minnesota) at a "big hotel" there. At some later time, the family moved to Minneapolis. When? Why? These notes go no farther, perhaps because they were intended only to cover an era that mother could not know by personal experience. They do say that your mother, Vera, was born in Chicago Aug. 29, 1897, while the family was living in Mankato. Why Chicago? Again, no explanation.

The family was living in Minneapolis in 1905, as attested by census data of that year which mother obtained to help corroborate her age when applying for Social Security benefits. (Evidently no official birth record could be found.) The census listing shows that in June of that year William was 34, Lou was 31, Vera was 8, and Dorothy was 2. Since Dorothy was born in Minneapolis on Sept. 8, 1902, the family obviously moved there between 1897 and 1902.

The listed ages confirm the 1897 birth date of Vera but indicate and 1874 birth date for Lou Chandler. This of course falls between the year that your records show, 1873, and the date in mother's notes, 1876. Probably the best we can conclude at this time, then, is that Grandmother Chandler was 86, 88, or 89 when she died in my parents' home in October of 1962. In 1968, a tree was caused to be planted in her memory in Jerusalem's Victory Forest by her great-grandson David Flint, my sister's oldest child.

Grandmother Chandler lived with us in Detroit when I was a child. I don't know whether my memory is worse than average but I don't have detailed, sequential recollections of childhood events, much less the years that they occurred. In any case, there came a time when she didn't live with us. There were things my mother didn't discuss with children (and to a considerable extent that remained true even when the children became adults). And it was plain that questions were unwelcome. So I don't know when it happened but I eventually learned that Grandmother Chandler suffered a breakdown and had to be institutionalized. She remained so a number of years before being able to return to my parents' home in the 1950s.

She was a gentle person; perhaps her nature left her too susceptible to such sorrows as the deaths of her first-born, then her husband, then your mother, Vera. But I remember her in her last years as being cheerful and showing at least no outward signs of distress.

Now I'll try a little guessing. You have no record of Grandmother Chandler after your mother's death in 1932. Could be that's when she came to Detroit. In April of 1932 I was 3½ years old, so it's really no wonder I don't remember.

My parents were married in Chicago on May 17, 1924, with Lou Chandler as one of the witnesses. Dorothy went to Chicago from Minneapolis, apparently accompanied by her mother. Royce traveled from Detroit to meet her there. So, another guess: After the newlyweds came on to Detroit, grandmother might have gone on to Rockford to join your family.

This is running on, but I'll add a couple more items from mother's notes that you might or might not find useful.

Lou Chandler's mother, Mattie Cunard, was one of nine children. Her sister Lillian married Carter Jones, brother of James Earl, so the four children of Carter and Lillian were double cousins to Lou and her siblings. Carter was a railroad man, too -- a locomotive fireman -- and they also lived in Chicago.

Lou's sister Bernice married Carl Easterly and they remained in Clinton. They had one child, who "died young."

Thursday

What with one interruption and another, the above took me a couple of afternoons to assemble, and you're probably wondering why you haven't heard from me. But I know that Jane has been in touch with you. I was so surprised when you called -- dumfounded, really -- that I probably wasn't conducting a very satisfactory conversation. But I am delighted to be "found" by you and to know for certain, finally, that we do have family in the world. Whatever my mother's quarrel with her sister was, it is buried with her, and we can only feel sorry for them. Life is too short for such stuff.

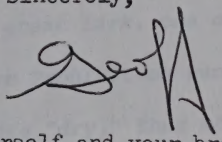
You ask about my family. Jo (Joan) and I have six children -- four girls, two boys -- all grown and married now. Daughter Beth has three children; daughter Amy has two, with a third expected in October. Son Geoff and his wife expect their first child in January. The others, Susan, Martha and Royce, have not had children yet.

We've lived in the Detroit area all our lives; have lived in Royal Oak (a few miles north of Detroit) about 30 years. As I mentioned, I'm with the Detroit News; in recent years as a makeup editor. Martha and Amy live nearby; the others are scattered from Texas to New York.

Let us now keep in touch. And thank you for the kind invitation to visit your home. Jo and I are not adventurers and never have traveled so far as California. (Well, Jo did go there once many years ago.) But one never knows where events will take us.

For our part, Jo is as pleased as I am to have heard from you, and we extend the same invitation to you to come see us at our house.

Sincerely,



P.S. And please, tell us more about yourself and your brother and sister.

Dear Sally:

Regarding Grandfather Chandler's "bootlegging" -- it could have happened, at least briefly. The dates for Prohibition run from 1919 to 1933, and as a child I heard vague stories from my mother that she used to help her father by delivering bootleg liquor to customers. I mean small amounts or bottles, something a teen-ager could carry in a coat pocket or a purse, not the car-and-gun of Chicago in the same era. Since the story originates with two sources, there may be some truth to it, but not in the mean way that your aunt obviously meant it. I assume that either Vera or Ed had told her.

My mother always treated it as a great lark, one of her few light-hearted memories. It also occurred to me that perhaps before Prohibition went nationwide, maybe Minneapolis or Minnesota, or even just the county, were "dry," thus the need for illegal liquor. If there's not a mystery, there does seem to be some vagueness about William Chandler's various occupations. Out of these bits of pieces of information or supposition, and the fact that he was reputed to be very handsome, I wonder if he may have been one of those easy-going charming men who do well (or well enough) in life using personality and likeability, as opposed to a skill or profession and hard work.

Odd, isn't it, my mother never mentioned hotels. During her childhood, I mean before high school, the family lived in a series of pleasant flats, according to her account. Maybe series is the wrong word, but anyhow, more than one. She was particularly vivid about that because at one point she lived across the street from the two little girls (not sisters) who became her dear lifelong friends. Both dead now, of course.

What was your mother like as a person? What memories do you and Ed and Vera have? I ask because I've made it pretty clear that my mother was not a contented or peaceful person, she carried a load of grudges -- accumulating more as she went along -- throughout her life. I have wondered whether her childhood was as unpleasant and unfair as she thought and said it was. I will tell you frankly that she was violently jealous of Vera and felt that she got the better treatment. If there hadn't been the estate to quarrel about and use as a reason for breaking with Vera, I think she would have found something else to use as a reason for cutting the ties.

I did get a very clear impression from my mother -- and I think it was totally unconscious on her part that I picked this up -- that William Chandler was disappointed that she was another girl, that he wanted a son to replace the one who died. His nickname for her was "Bugs," which doesn't seem very pleasant for a child of either sex, but you can't really tell a lot from family nicknames, often they have long fond memories behind them, and only sound strange to an outsider. Nevertheless, it seemed to come through her words that she was "supposed" to have been the boy, and that her father was sorry she wasn't.

As I've said, our family life was tense and strange, what therapists today would call dysfunctional. However, it was not years of unrelieved misery. My father was extremely witty and amusing, and my mother, when she let herself go, could be fun to be with. It never lasted, of course, but the puzzlement (for me) was not knowing what brought on the happy times, or why they would vanish so abruptly. I am not trying to compare our life (Geoff and me) with what all of you had to face, just saying that none of us seem to come from solidly loving backgrounds.

I have an old college friend my age, also divorced, who spends a lot of his time mourning the loss of "solid family values in America," the extended family, all those myths of people who romanticize the past. Well, look what happened to all of you. Look at my mother, breaking with Vera. My father was emotionally remote from his mother, and I believe that his father abandoned him. When Grandmother Chandler was 15 her father (a widower) remarried, and Grandmother was sent to live with relatives in Clinton, Iowa. What I'm trying to say, Sally, and I'm sure you know it, too: There never was a time in this country when all families were solid and happy, when all ties were honored and all duties performed. People look at the past through a sentimental mist and they confuse a Norman Rockwell painting with reality. The reality is that people get let down, left,

I am so grateful that I have my sons -- although I don't mean that in a possessive way. I love them and I am proud of them. We were not the ideal family either, but we did manage to break away from a lot of rigid patterns of behavior that I, without knowing it, carried from my past. What helped us a lot was a point about six or seven years ago when David, the oldest, went into therapy. We had some family sessions, and sometimes just Jerry and I would go with David -- traveling from Washington (where we were living, but separately) to New York to do so. A lot of truths came out, some painful, some positive, and we learned -- to varying degrees, depending on each personality -- to be more open with one another. David's therapist is a fine man, warm and practical. We were all very fond of him, and when David and Ann got married last summer Dr. Richman came to the wedding. I am going into all this because years ago, when the boys were little (three in a little over three years, and Joe much later) I saw how my family experiences were stunting and stifling everything about us, and I swore I'd break that chain of unhappiness. To a degree I succeeded, although one can never say "There, I'm done. Now I'm perfect." Still, I like myself better at 54 than I did at 24.

Gee Sally, I started out to write about the preceding generation, and I'm running on about myself, instead. Still, we've got a lot of catching-up to do, and I hope that any information is helpful.

I got your letter last night, and it was so strange to read all the documents of those long-ago people. Again I'll say it: the broken circle is being completed, the missing lines are appearing. I thought I had shoved everything right out of my mind, but of course I didn't. It was always there, and I'm so glad that the puzzle is being finished.

Write soon.

Fondly,
Jane

I'm so curious.

Dear Betty and Ed:

It was good to hear from you, and as I keep telling Sally, I'm so glad that you all set out to find us and succeeded. I am hoping that we can plan for a reunion, although strictly speaking I suppose it's not a reunion but a first encounter. Anyhow, I've said to Sally, what about next May in Clinton, Iowa, where it all began. I suppose it really began with Adam and Eve, but as a symbolic starting point Clinton will do very well. I have used up all but a few of this year's vacation days, and so has Geoff, and there's also the weather to consider -- somehow I feel that Iowa in midwinter will not be very appealing. May is a lovely month in any part of the country, and so it seems like a good choice -- please let me know what you think.

I've been studying the photo you sent me -- you're two good-looking people -- looking for family resemblances. Ed, I think you have higher cheekbones than either Geoff or I do, but I seem to see what I will call "the Chandler mouth." It looks to be very like my mother's, and I have it and so does my third son, Douglas Chandler Flint. It's interesting that we both hit on the same name for our third child.

I don't know if Sally told you -- there's been so much to tell -- but Geoff and I have Chandlers on both sides of the family. There was Dorothy Chandler, of course, but our paternal great-grandmother was also a Chandler: Emmaline Augusta Chandler, before she married; born, raised, and died in the state of Maine. My parents used to joke that perhaps they were distant cousins and that this would explain why we were all so odd. Who knows?

Sally mentioned an aunt of yours, Ed Leach's youngest sister, who seems to know more than she will tell about the whole mess of our parents' generation. Now that she (your aunt) can know that your cousins are found, that everyone is pleased, and whatever the feud was is no concern of ours, except for solving the mystery, perhaps she will be willing to say more about it. As I've told Sally, when it came to holding a grudge, no one could beat Dorothy Chandler Howes, but something that could split a

I am hoping that we can plan for a reunion, although strictly speaking I suppose it's not a reunion but a first encounter. Anyhow, I've said to Sally, what about next May in Clinton, Iowa, where it all began. I suppose it really began with Alma and Pete, but as a symbolic starting point Clinton will do very well. How that she (your aunt) can know that your cousins are found, that everyone is pleased, and whatever the feud was is no concern of ours, except for solving the mystery, perhaps she will be willing to say more about it. As I've told Sally, when it came to holding a grudge, no one could beat Dorothy Chandler Hanes, but something that could split a family (through her choice and actions) for over 50 years arouses my curiosity. I have mentioned to some of my friends this wonderful discovery that I do have cousins, and given them a somewhat edited version of Dorothy's quarrel with Vera. To my naive surprise, I find that family quarrels and family splits are not that uncommon. I mean, intellectually I've always known that these things happen, but emotionally I have always been shocked by my mother's actions. Time makes so many things trivial, and one generation's quarrels are simply a puzzle for the next generation. It's difficult to put into words, but I feel a great sense of peace now that I know about all of you and now that we are getting to know one another. It hasn't been a conscious sense of lack, but at the back of mind, I always had the sense of something important that was lost. Well, lost no more, and I am delighted.

Your retirement life and your home both sound wonderful. David, my oldest son, is considering moving to Seattle when he is finished with grad school. His wife Ann has a sister living there, and David and Ann both like that area very much. I must tell you about a funny mix-up, only just discovered, over David's middle name, which is Randall. My mother somehow got it into her head that Roxanne (or Roxanna) Russell's last name was Randall, so when David was born, I gave him Randall as a middle name. I like the custom of using family names for middle names. Anyhow, from all her research, Sally told me that it's not Randall at all, but Russell. I haven't told David this yet, but he is so easy-going about things like that, that I think he'll be amused by the mistake.

I look forward to hearing from you again, and hope that we can make the reunion a reality. It's a sentimental notion to meet in Clinton, but I like the idea and hope that you do, too.

Warmly,

Jane

Wed., Oct. 12

Dear Sally:

I'm taking a break from a long client report to write to you -- it makes a nice change. I wrote to Vera last night and enclosed a photo of myself. Once again, the eyes are obscured, but the day will come when I'll have a picture taken when I'm not wearing sunglasses.

Sally, would you mind if I wrote directly to your aunt -- Ed Leach's sister? I would like to ask her (tactfully) what, if anything, she knows about Dorothy and Vera's youth, and I'm also interested in any memories in general that she might have about that time and place and those people. Perhaps I could reassure her that the break came in the last generation, and we are interested because it's part of our history and would explain a lot of puzzling behavior.

I was thinking about my mother (again) after I wrote to Vera, and it occurred to me that I have probably dealt with her unjustly. I don't mean that I'm retracting anything I've said about her character and behavior -- she was difficult, and why deny it? -- but because of my reactions to her, it never occurred to me that I don't know her "side" of anything. I am not talking about the quarrel and break with Vera, I've always known about that, but not know everything, of course. I mean, I don't know much about her life before she married. I told Vera last night, part of my mother's problems arose because she simply could not believe that any of us -- my father, my brother, and me -- truly loved her. Now I wonder what experiences may have marked her in such a way that she could not believe that people loved her, and so turned away from them. But I'll bet that more often than I could imagine, she turned away in pain and lonelieness, but she couldn't communicate it, couldn't say that she didn't love and didn't trust, and explain why she was that way.

It's too late now, of course, but am I looking for anything that will ease my memories of her and let me give her more kindness and understanding when I recall her. I suppose I'm trying to say, the long way around, something in her past made her that way, and what was it? That's why I am eager to communicate with your aunt -- not because she knew Dorothy for a long time (I'm assuming she didn't) but because she may have some memories of events, or even casual gossip, that might have some meaning for me. Anyhow, if you don't think it will make any problems for the three of you, would you send me her address so I can write to her?

I've enclosed photos of my four sons and Geoff. Look at them carefully for any resemblances, please. I was nearly undone when I saw the photo that Vera sent me. That same downward, sweet look that I remember from Grandmother Chandler. It was an uncanny experience.

Have you given any more thought to our reunion next spring? I really want to do it. Tell me, in confidence, how is Vera's health? I worry a little bit, I don't know why. Do you think that basically she's in good shape, but with some of the ailments that growing older brings? Please give me your opinion. Anyhow, I think I'll call Vera at the end of this week, before she goes into the hospital, so we can chat and I can wish her good luck with her operation.

Well, back to work. It pays the rent, right?

Love,
Jane

September 12, 1988

Dear Sally:

I've been in such a daze since we spoke, I hope this letter is coherent. I am pleased that you found Geoff and me, I have always felt that a part of my family was missing, but thanks to your efforts that's been changed.

I have bits and pieces of Chandler family history, but no important papers, as I said. You're way ahead of me in documenting events. My mother often talked to me about her childhood, but there was never a logical, linear presentation. In fact, she was often simply rehearsing and ventilating ancient grievances and grudges, something I could recognize even though I was still very young.

However, there was some real information scattered in among the complaints, i.e. my mother's version of why she broke with Vera, so finally and implacably. My mother always believed that somehow Ed Leach had mishandled the settling of Grandfather Chandler's estate, so there was nothing left for her and Grandmother Chandler. She said frequently that everything was "lost," meaning not only money but possessions. Whether this is true or accurate, I don't know. I offer it as the only reason she ever gave for shutting Vera and Ed out of her life.

It does seem to be true, as you and I have both found, that no early papers or photos remain from the Chandler family, William, Louella, Vera, and Dorothy. As I said yesterday, I could believe when I look at my mother's records that her life began when she entered college. What there is is mainly the trivia of a young woman's life, a lot of publicity on her sorority's events, her engagement notice (not so trivial) and even still some dance cards, if I remember correctly.

This is all water under the bridge, as far as I'm concerned. I am interested because I want to solve and resolve some family mysteries, but my mother's quarrels and difficulties are not mine, even though I try to figure out why she acted as she did.

You may wonder why I simply didn't ask for information as I got older. The answer is that for many years both my parents appeared and were formidable to me. It took a long time to get over that. We did not have much serious, direct communication, but it was very easy to sense what they didn't want to discuss, and family pasts were high on the list for both of them. If it hadn't been for my mother's need to complain to someone, I might not have known the little I do know.

I will leave it to Geoff to give you the details on his family and just fill you in on mine. I was born on Feb. 2, 1934, usual upbringing and education, and married Jerry Flint in April 1955. We have four sons -- David Randall Flint, 11/14/56; Perry (Peretz) Anson Flint, 4/9/58; Douglas Chandler Flint, 12/29/59; and Joseph Bucknam Flint, 1/24/65. David married Ann Lieberman in August of 1987, and they live in New York. Perry married Donna (Azrak) in July 1982, and they live in suburban Maryland, not too far from me. Douglas was married to Jane (Ripley) Flint, but they are divorcing. Doug lives in Alexandria, Virginia. Joe is not married, but has a wonderful girlfriend, so I have hopes. They live in Washington, D.C. David's wife kept her maiden name and Perry's wife took his name, in case you wonder.

Jerry Flint and I separated amicably in April 1981 and finally divorced in the spring of this year. Jerry has since remarried, but we remain on good terms. I work as a senior account executive at the Washington office of Hill and Knowlton, a public relations firm.

I don't know if Geoff gave you the information on our parents' deaths. Dorothy died in 1971, of congestive heart failure. Royce died in 1973, just 17 months later, of a double aneurism.

I find it interesting and depressing that there is a history of cancer in our family -- I have been aware for some time now of the gap in my family medical history. Dorothy had cancer too, and had a mastectomy in the mid-sixties. She did not die of cancer, but it had recurred at the time of her death, and all in all I consider it fortunate that she died of congestive heart failure instead, since the cancer was inoperable and untreatable. I don't know if she even knew about it, her doctor told us.

I was distressed but not surprised by my father's letter to Ed Leach when Ed had turned to my parents for help. Both my parents were relentless in holding grudges, although my father was more close-mouthed about it. As I told you, although they had many warm and loving friends, we were not a particularly warm and loving family, although I think my parents loved one another very much and depended on each other in ways that I couldn't recognize when I was young. I don't know what made them such rigid, unforgiving people, but it surely says something for natural selection or elective affinity that they found one another and reinforced one another.

I am looking for the photos I mentioned to you. I don't lose things, but I frequently manage to mislay them for long periods of time. Please don't be discouraged by this, I just mean that it will take some time to turn them up. I will also enclose recent photos of my sons and me (though I am notably unphotogenic) so we can trace family resemblances. The older I get, the more I believe in heredity over environment as the determining factor in human lives. In fact, I am sometimes depressingly aware that I don't have too promising a heredity to draw on, in terms of character and behavior, but I refuse to let the past govern me.

I don't mean to imply that my parents were thorough monsters. They were two difficult and deeply flawed human beings, and perhaps they came to regret their actions, but I will never know.

I am going to throw out some questions at random, and if I already asked them yesterday, put it down to excited forgetfullness.

Do you plan to try any further checking on Grandmother Chandler's family past in Clinton, Iowa?

David Flint's middle name is Randall. Does that ring a bell with you? My mother said that Randall was a family name on Louella Jones' side, and I have a beautiful old engagement ring that marks a Randall engagement, but I don't know any more than that.

Is Lester Chandler -- son of Lester Chandler -- still living? Did he leave any family, if he's dead. Do you know anything about them?

How old were Jane and Betty Lou when they died? Did they have children?

Sally, I am delighted that you persisted until you found us. I hope that in the future we might all be able to get together somewhere for a "get-acquainted reunion." When I was a child I particularly missed not having cousins, they were so much a part of everyones' lives. Every book that I read seemed to have bands of cousins roaming through the plot, and I always felt I was missing something. I would like to know more about Jane and Betty Lou, as well as you, Ed, and Vera. I was always pleased that Jerry Flint's family had so many aunts, uncles, cousins, second cousins, and in-laws (Jerry is Jewish) and I probably kept better track of them than Jerry ever did, and am still close to them.

Please write soon. I'm sure as we learn to know one another and trade information, more questions will occur to us. I am fascinated by the discovery of where Grandfather Chandler was when he died. It ties in with vague hints and suggestions I used to pick up. Grandmother Chandler told me once that he used to tip her -- real money, just like a restaurant -- if he thought the dinner was good. What do you think of that?

Warmly,

Jane Flint

Dear Betty and Ed:

Please forgive this long silence. The summer has passed like the book of Job, and we all know how happy he was. A combination of job problems, overwork, and high humidity (I'm a sensitive little flower) flattened my brain waves completely. Now I can feel them springing back, little by little, and on each cell is printed a message: "Write to Betty and Ed!"

It's annoying to fill a letter with questions, but I must ask, how was the wedding? Ed, did you tape it? (I'm looking for excuses to travel to Friday Harbor.) Also, I really enjoyed going through all the genealogical information you sent to me, and Sally tells me that you've traced the Leach family back to the Mayflower. This must entitle you to some kind of tax break, at the very least.

Iowa was so much fun and I have fond memories of the six of us doing the grand tour of cemeteries. When I had my pictures developed it was a surprise to see how many gravestones I had photographed. The developing service must have though I was a little strange, perhaps a parttime vampire. Now I see the advantages of the Ph.D. (point here, dummy) cameras -- all my photos came out beautifully.

Ever since seeing Shaffton Cemetery -- where we found Nehemiah Russell -- I've been playing with the idea of being buried there. That's not morbid, it's just such a beautiful spot. So, I estimate what it might cost to get a filled casket to Iowa, and realize that I can't ask the Flint boys to undertake such a project, although they would if I requested it. Then I thought of cremation (even though I said I don't like it). After all, I wouldn't know about it, would I, and I like the thought of my ashes sifting down and around beautiful Shaffton Cemetery. Besides, the boys could afford it.

As for the job problems, they are not overwhelming, simply a continuing irritation, so that I don't enjoy coming in to work. I think I need a

Dear Betty and Ed:

Please forgive this long silence. The summer has passed like the best of days, and we all know how happy we were. A combination of job problems, overwork, and high humidity (I'm a sensitive little flower) flattened my brain cells completely. Now I can feel them springing back, little by little, and on each cell is printed a message: "Write to Betty and Ed!"

It's annoying to fill a letter with questions, but I must ask, how was the weather? Ed, did you take it! (I'm looking for excuses to throw it Friday mornings.) Also, I really enjoyed going through all the genealogical information you sent to me, and Sally tells me that you've traced the Leech family back to the Mayflower. This must entitle you to some kind of tax break, at the very least.

Iowa was so much fun and I have fond memories of the six of us doing the grand tour of cemeteries. When I had my pictures developed it was a surprise to see how many gravestones I had photographed. The developing service must have thought I was a little strange, perhaps a parttime vampire. Now I see the advantages of the 35 m.m. (point here, dummy) camera -- all my photos came out beautifully.

Ever since seeing Shaffton Cemetery -- where we found Heinrich Russell -- I've been playing with the idea of being buried there. That's not morbid, it's just such a peaceful spot. So, I estimate what it might cost to get a fitted casket to Iowa, and realize that I can't ask the Flint boys to undertake such a project, although they would if I requested it. Then I thought of cremation (even though I said I don't like it). After all, I wouldn't know about it, would I, and I like the thought of my ashes sifting down and around beautiful Shaffton Cemetery. Besides, the boys could afford it.

As for the job problems, they are not overwhelming, simply a continuing irritation, so that I don't enjoy coming in to work. I think I need a wealthy widower, childless, of course, so there won't be any ugly scenes over the will. I will inherit his millions, the house in France, the apartment in Manhattan, and the horse farm in Virginia. I will achieve all this when pigs have wings, and around here there aren't any pigs (except for the human variety) to check to see if the wings have sprouted yet. Another good plan shot down.

Part of the summer depression can be explained by a long siege of dental work, estimated to last for another year. I'm having lots and lots of crowns done. When the dentist is finished, I will have more crowns than the Hapsburgs and the Romanovs combined. But the process is wearing, and means two-hour (and longer) sessions in the chair, so I'm either recovering from one session or dreading the next.

Anyhow, do please forgive my long delay in writing to you. My family feelings are stronger than ever, now that we've all met, and I have no plans to disappear.

Love to both of you -

Jane

Dear Ed and Betty,

Having received both your letters, it's high time I replied. I was away for a week this month visiting our older son and his wife in New York state and am still trying to catch up. This year was to have been Jo's turn to travel, since I went to New York last year for the wedding of Jane's son David. But our daughter Amy was having some difficulties late in her pregnancy so Jo decided to stay home and help out there and I took the trip instead. The baby wasn't due until after my return but she arrived a week early, while I was out of town.

It is indeed amazing to be corresponding with kin who only a few weeks ago were unknown. As you say, Sally was enterprising and diligent, and I'm glad she was.

Thank you for the photo. Ed looks so familiar, in a way I can't define, that it must be Chandler influence I'm seeing. Specifically, I'm reminded most strongly of Jane's son Douglas. As you requested, I'm enclosing a photo of Jo and me. It was taken about three years ago.

Thanks also for the chart. It's good that you're going to continue your genealogical research because much of the information I found is unconfirmed and, as I said, there might be inaccuracies in it. The Russell/Randall discrepancy is a major one and I suspect that Randall will turn out to be an error in transcription, since your data and Sally's show the name as Russell. This would tend to be confirmed by the name of Lou and William's first child, Lester Russell.

The tendency of folks to migrate westward in those earlier years must make a genealogical search more difficult, since it necessarily must cover so many states and jurisdictions. I'm impressed that even now you have 19 places to visit. It may well turn out that you will trace the families to the East Coast, as you speculate.

It will be fun for us all to meet. I know from talking with Jane that she has been writing; she is, I confess, a better correspondent than I am. It's a bit early for me to pin down travel dates since I have to wait and see how our department vacation schedule shapes up after the first of the year. Because of the pending joint operating agreement between the two Detroit papers, now awaiting an appeals court decision, my situation might change entirely by spring -- but that is a bridge to be crossed when I get there.

Sounds like you have a winter of extensive travel planned and I assume you'll not be getting mail at your home address. Perhaps Sally can relay any information that turns up.

It's good to hear from you; let's stay in touch.

Sincerely,

Geoff

Dear Jo & Geoff,

Before we know it, we'll all be meeting in Clinton, Iowa. We'll leave for North Dakota about the 8th - 10th of May. We'll spend a few days in Forman with Vera before leaving for Clinton on Saturday, May 20th.

We'll travel with our trailer, but we have reservations at the Travelodge while you and Jane are there.

It will be great if we can make some family history break throughs while we're in Clinton. If we can find burial sites for your great great grandparents, we'll obtain information that we can't get any other way.

We have a lead on James Earl Jones' father.In the Mormon files, the International Genealogical Index, a James Jones, father William Jones, was 3 years old, living in Clinton County, Missouri, at the time of the 1850 census. (This age is about right for James Earl Jones.) There was also a Carter Jones, father Erasmus Jones, age 5, Pike County, Missouri; a Margaret Jones, age 1, Clinton County, Missouri, father James I. Jones; an E. P. Jones, age 23, no father given, Clinton County, Missouri; and a Josiah Jones, age 1, father William Jones, Clinton County, Missouri. They were probably all related as the same person sent the information to the Mormon files 18 years ago.

We have requested the microfiche with information about the entries, but it may not arrive from Salt Lake City before we leave. We'll just keep our fingers crossed. Our guess is that William, Erasmus, James I., and probably E. P. Jones were brothers, but we'll just have to wait and see.

Our librarian has ordered a history of the Northwestern Railroad for us. We hope it will include maps showing early railroad routes in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri. The first route for Northwestern opened about 1848, so James Jones was an early railroad man.

We're trying to get vital records (birth, marriage records and, when appropriate, death records and burial sites.)

We would like to get information on both of you and on your children and their spouses.

The following information would be helpful:

Birth date; birth place (city, state)
Marriage date; marriage place (city, state)

Name of parents, including the above information

Name of spouse, including the above information

The same information about your children will help make the records complete. We try to obtain this data on close relatives when possible.

I'll enclose a family group sheet as an example. Eventually, I would like to complete one for you. Do you have a copy of your parents' marriage record and death records? If you do, we would appreciate a copy for their genealogy file.

We're bringing most of our genealogy records with us, so we'll show you what we have accumulated when we see you.

We'll it's about time for my morning walk. We're trying to exercise every day while we're at home. Ed walks for 2 hours and I try to walk for one hour. Our last cholesterol test got our attention. After fasting, Ed's No. was 215, and mine was 188; but the ratio of LDL's (bad guys) to HDL's (good guys) was too high. We were quite surprised because we have really watched our fat intake for the past nine years. I guess we were too naughty on our trip. (too many muffin snacks)

I found the Arizona air too dry for my tastes. I guess we've lived close to water for too long.

We're looking forward to seeing you both.

Love,

Betty

Dear Ed & Betty,

We enjoyed your recent letters, though I admit you wouldn't know it, judging from the speed of my response. It's been an odd spring, one way and another, and I spent most of April working the afternoon shift, which disgruntled me. I worked afternoons for many years in the '50s and '60s and mostly didn't mind; now I seem less flexible. If I can get the right deal from the newspaper I'll retire in the fall and won't work any shift. I'm ready.

I hope that by now you're well mended, Betty, and are getting your golf equipment ready. It's a sport I've never tried but I know so many people who are enthusiastic about it that I'm beginning to think I should have.

Thanks for the updates on your genealogical labors; perhaps by now you've had responses to your queries in the magazines. It's interesting that there is a Russell registry. Do such groups exist for various family names or are Russells particularly numerous?

And thanks, too, for the family group sheets. They represent a lot of work, I know. If you want to complete the section on my mother, Dorothy Chandler, the funeral service was Aug. 6, 1971, in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan, and her ashes were interred in the cathedral columbarium a week later. A minor correction on her place of death: she died in Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, which is in Oakland County, but they did live in Wayne County, in Highland Park.

You mention your projected trip to Salt Lake City for more research. I assume this involves Mormon church records and leads me to wonder again why the Mormons seem to be so much more interested in genealogy than other churches or groups. Does it have something to do with authenticating membership records?

You also mention that you may go back to Clinton and I'm reminded that it was just about a year ago that we all met there -- and encountered those great people, like the Paasches and Mary McKenrick. Do you ever hear from them? I sent Christmas cards, so maybe will get cards from them next Christmas.

The weather here varies sharply from week to week but averages out to be more or less normal. Not so in the West and South, where the lack of water in one region and surfeit in the other is becoming worrisome. I read that oversensitive folks in Santa Barbara are painting their brown grass green, while our daughter Susan in Shreveport reports they are living in three inches of standing water -- and that's on the high ground. A house they used to own in Dallas had the foundation washed out from under it, so they're glad they sold out. Glad to hear that you've been getting some rain in Friday Harbor.

Best regards,

Geoff (and Jo)

Dear Jane,

Thank you for the Easter card--it was so appropriate. For the last nine years, we have drastically reduced both saturated and unsaturated fats in our diets.

We must have been a bit careless while we were travelling because the result of our cholesterol test at the time of our recent physcial got our attention. Ed's No. was 215 and mine was 188; but the ratio of LDL (bad guys) to HDL (good guys) was too high. To increase our soluble fiber, we have devised a great hot cereal. We use 1/2 cup oat bran + 1/2 cup quick oats cooked in 2 cups boiling water. It cooks in about 1 1/2 minutes. We add a dash of vanilla, a 1/2 to 3/4 tspn. of cinnamon + 6 thinly sliced or chopped dates. It tastes like a dessert to us.

It doesn't seem possible that we'll all be meeting soon. We'll be leaving here between the 8th and 10th of May. First, we'll go to North Dakota, for a short visit with Vera. On Saturday, May 19, we'll leave for Iowa. We will be travelling with our trailer; but for the time you are in Clinton, We'll stay at the Travelodge, too.

Hopefully, we will be able to make some genealogy break throughs on the Chandler, Russell, Jones, Conard (Cunard) families. If we can find the grave sites of your ancestors, we'll find data that we won't find written anywhere. On Eds father's side, grave sites were found for two great great grandparents in Ohio. They died in 1840 and 1843 before complete death records were kept in the state.

We'll keep our fingers crossed that we can find a lot of information. We may have found a clue concerning James Earl Jones' father. IGI, International Genealogical Index--Mormon records, shows a James Jones, age 3, father, William Jones, Clinton County, Missouri, 1850 census. It also showed a Carter Jones, age 5, father, Erasmus Jones, Pike County, Missouri; a Margaret Jones, age 1, father, James I. Jones, Clinton County, Missouri; and an E. P. Jones, age 23, no father given. This information was sent in to the Mormon files 18 years ago by the same person. We have requested the microfiche with more detailed information from Salt Lake City. We hope the film will arrive here before we leave.

Geoff's letter mentioned that James Jones was a passenger engineer for the Northwestern Railroad. Our librarian has ordered a book for us on the history of the Northwestern Railroad. It should prove interesting, and we hope maps of the railroad routes in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri will be given in the book.

We would like to get some genealogy information for you and for your children and their spouses.

We would like to get vital records (birth and marriage records and, when appropriate, death records and burial sites) for close relatives.

The following information would be helpful:

Birth date; birth place (city, state)

Marriage date; marriage place (city, state)

Names of parents which includes the above information

Name of spouse or former spouse which includes the above information

The same information about your children will help make the records complete.

I will enclose a sample family group sheet as an example. Eventually, we would like to complete one for you.

We are both looking forward to our meeting. It still seems almost unreal. Sally, Ed and I have been working for a little over one year on this genealogy search. Sally had done considerable research ten years ago, so we didn't start from scratch. But the most important result of the search has been finding you and Geoff.

It's time for my exercise. Ed walks for 2 hours each morning when we're home, and I try to walk for an hour. We're diligently trying to take off the few pounds we put on while we were travelling.

I found the Arizona air too dry for my taste. I'm so used to living near water that the moist air is more comfortable for me.

See you soon, and thanks again for the great card.

Love,

Ed & Betty

Monday, June 11

Dear Betty and Ed:

Please forgive my long silence. Late in May I got suddenly, unpleasantly (is there a pleasant illness?), and mysteriously ill, and it really took the starch out of me. It was a bacterial infection of the stomach, and my doctor insisted it was also a bout of diverticulitis, although the ghastly (ghastly to have, as I'm sure you know) barium X-rays didn't show anything wrong. At any rate, I'm fine now, and thank God for Blue Cross.

Just before I got sick I had submitted a minor doctor's bill to Blue Cross, and of course received one of their inimitably haughty notices saying that I hadn't met the $200 deductible, and that the bill would be applied toward meeting it. Then WHAM!, I hit them with about $800 in costs for the doctor, the X-rays, and the medicine. It must have looked like, "Okay Blue Cross, I'll show you what's what."

Earlier in May, as a Mother's Day outing, my son and daughter-in-law, Perry and Donna, took me to Chancellorsville, Virginia, to tour the Civil War battlefield there. In fact, several battlefields overlap at that point, so I could also say we saw parts of Spottsylvania and the Wilderness. We'll go back and do them properly another time. We saw the little house where Stonewall Jackson died, and picnicked on the grounds there. I'm sure Stonewall wouldn't mind. It was really very moving, even if he fought on the wrong side. What a great military man he was, and how the Civil War lives and breathes when you live down here.

Oh, forgot to say that the house where Stonewall died was a modest four room building which served as the business office for a great plantation, now of course, no more. And it was owned by a family named Chandler, apparently quite wealthy and respected at the time. Donna asked the National Park Service officer on duty at the house questions about the family, but I refused to join in, because I don't believe that any of our ancestors could ever have owned slaves. And if they did, I don't want to know about it. Fortunately, Chandler is not an unusal name in the U.S.

I noticed that Alfred Carter Jones place of burial is Arlington. Is that Arlington National Cemetery, Virginia? Can that be? If so, he must have served in a war. (Boy, I'm clever.) Or am I romanticizing, is there an Arlington, Illinois or Iowa? Also, for your records, Betty, my father is buried in Elmwood Cemetery, Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan. It's a lovely old cemetery, way down on the edges of downtown Detroit, so to speak. It is now entirely surrounded by some of the worst, most dangerous slums you would ever care to see, but we chose it because it includes one of the last (maybe THE last) historic Detroit sites. That's Bloody Run Creek, where some time before the Revolution there was a fierce battle between the settlers, the British, and the local Indians. My father was always interested in local history, and had done articles about events in old Detroit. He knew about Bloody Run still flowing through Elmwood, and had visited it some years before, so it seemed appropriate to bury him there.

This is a lovely, cool, windy night. Out weather is still so unsettled that I have hopes of a mild summer, or at least a summer where the heat and humidity don't last for weeks on end. It was only last week that I took the winter quilt off my bed, the nights have been that cool. And tonight, I may put it right back on.

I'm having an interesting time at work, learning desktop publishing. Now that I've transferred to Corporate & Political Issues, I'm in charge of getting out their monthly (small) magazine, called "Public Affairs Report." I make the writing assignments, do the editing, and then assist in the production. This is my first time at doing it all on my own, and while editing comes easily to me, the mechanical, or computer, side of the work is still tricky. And of course, whenever you take over a project from someone else, there are dozens of things that never get properly explained, so it's like learning to fly by just starting the plane and taking off.

And I think that it's time for me to head off to bed to dream (no doubt) about sending material to the Graphics Department via a computer hook-up. It's not as exciting as a new boat -- how I envy you that -- bet you're having great times with it.

Take care and write soon.

Love,
Jane

Royce Howes of Free Press Dies at 72

BY JOHN OPPEDAHL
Free Press Staff Writer

Royce Howes, a former editorial director for the Free Press who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1955 for editorial writing, died Sunday at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. He was 72.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete late Sunday.

Lee Hills, president and publisher of the Free Press, said Sunday of Mr. Howes, who worked at the paper for more than 38 years:

"Royce Howes was a distinguished newspaperman whose achievements were a reflection not only of his professional ability but of his deep concern for his community.

"He will be missed not only by the colleagues who profited from his counsel, even after his retirement, but by every person who ever knew him."

MR. HOWES joined the Free Press in 1927 as a rewrite man and reporter and later served as assistant news editor, assistant city editor, city editor and military affairs specialist. He became associate editor in charge of the editorial page in 1955 and editorial director in 1961.

He retired in 1968.

Mr. Howes was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1955 for a 1954 editorial on the causes of a strike at a Chrysler Corp. plant. He also won the National Headliner Award for the editorial.

While he often dealt with the weighty and important topics of the world in editorials, Mr. Howes also saw things of a humorous nature.

Colleagues recall, for example, that he once wrote a piece about a decision that the police would no longer use paddy wagons to haul miscreants off to jail. He noted that some of the best extemporaneous public speaking in history had been delivered from the backsteps of paddy wagons by those who rode in them.

MR. HOWES was born Jan. 3, 1901, in Minneapolis. He attended grade and high schools there and, as he later put it, "ventured tentatively onto the University of Minnesota campus, and tarried but briefly."

He served with the Minnesota National Guard, then worked for a milling company, sailed the Atlantic on cattle ships, worked on a truck farm and maintained signals for a railroad.

He came to Detroit in 1924 and joined the Detroit News business office staff. Two years later he went to work for a steel products firm to edit an in-house publication.

Then he joined the Free Press.

He took military leave from the Free Press in January, 1943, to accept a captain's commission. He served in the European theater in World War II and was promoted to major and then to lieutenant colonel, becoming officer-in-charge of Army News Service.

He was awarded the Bronze Star for service overseas. He was released from active military service in March, 1946.

In the 1930s he wrote eight mystery novels and also wrote many pieces of short fiction for magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post.

In 1953, he published a biography of Edgar A. Guest, the late Free Press poet. At various times Mr. Howes also did radio commentaries.

From 1931 to 1941, and after his retirement, he was a part-time teacher of journalism at Wayne State University.

HE HAD BEEN a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Detroit Historical Society, the Friends of the Detroit Public Library, the National Headliners, the Detroit Press Club and the Box 12 Associates, a group of fire department buffs.

He married the former Dorothy Chandler, also of Minneapolis, in 1924. She died Aug. 3, 1971.

Mr. Howes is survived by a son, Geoffrey of Royal Oak, a copyreader at the Detroit News; a daughter, Mrs. Jerry (Jane) Flint of Upper Montclair, N.J., and 10 grandchildren.
